

Mokena Board Honors Retiring Village Treas.

The Mokena village council paid a marked tribute of respect to John Liess who has been village treasurer for 18 years the past week. Mr. Liess is over 80 years old and recently resigned as his advancing age made it necessary to retire from all activities. The individual board members and Mayor Harry Mall Clubbed together and presented Mr. Liess with a $10 gold piece and the following letter of appreciation of his long and faithful service as drawn up by Paul Roessner, the Village clerk:

Mokena, Illinois, July 29, 1930.
Mr. John Liess,
Mokena, Illinois.
Dear Mr. Liess:

Neither we, who have been your associates in the conduct of the business affairs of our Village nor your large host of friends have ever been or could be unmindful of the pleasure and profit which we have had through our contact with you in all of the years that you have dwelt among us, nineteen of which marked the period of your service as Village Treasurer. A continued activity for so many years in itself a notable achievement and in your own experience is emphasized by that fine and faithful performance of duty that has not only endeared you to your fellow citizens, but given them always an abiding contentment with the conduct of the office of treasurer as you have administered it.

We are conscious also that for fifty years or more you have been active in all those affairs of the village that have been for the continued best interest and happiness of its citizens. All these things have come to us with renewed force and appreciation because of your recent retirement from the office of village treasurer, and while we feel that you are conscious of the affection and high esteem of your fellow townspeople yet wish on their behalf and our own to give this expression thereto, even though realizing how inadequately it may be done.

We trust that there may remain to you many pleasant years of life, wherein you may busy yourself in such way as will bring to you the fullest measure of happiness and contentment. We believe the conscious thought of all our village people is "well done, good, and faithful servant" and if it were possible for the signatures of everyone to be appended hereto, it would be a giving of "hands" in a grip of enduring friendship and under the "seal" of abiding affection.

Mokena Council To Place Lights

The Mokena council is considering placing a new street light at the southwest corner of the new school site. Frank A. Tooley has asked the board for a light on the street on which his new home is located. He has also asked the board to grade this street and the street and alley committee will act on the matter.

KIDNAPPING CHARGE IS DISMISSED

George Laufer, Grant Park grain dealer and former resident of Mokena who has figured in a number of sensational court cases in Will county since he was divorced from his first wife, pressed a kidnapping charge against Alburn Steel, of Mokena, his first wife's second husband, in the Kankakee county court Monday and lost out as the case was dismissed.

Laufer had two of the younger children at his home in Grant Park where he is living with his third wife, when Mrs. Steel called to see the children one night recently. At the time of her divorce the court had ruled that Mrs. Steel was to have the children. When the latter wanted to go home with her Mrs. Steel took them home. Laufer immediately had a warrant sworn out charging Steel with kidnapping the children.

When the case came up in the Kankakee court Monday morning, Mr. Steel proved by his star witness Charles Hirsch of Mokena that he (Steel) was at home in Mokena at the time and hour he was charged by Laufer to have been in Grant Park kidnapping his children. After this evidence was heard the case was dismissed.

Mokena Banker Reports Good Crops

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bartels returned Friday from a two weeks vacation at Alma, Iowa. Mr. Bartels found the crops in better condition than in this section. Rain is badly needed there, but in some parts of Iowa timely showers had helped wonderfully. Mr. Bartels is the cashier of the Mokena state bank.

Auto Crash Lands Family In Hospital

A big Mack truck and a Hudson automobile figured in a serious collision on the Lincoln highway at the west side of the Owen hill last Friday noon. A piece of paving had been repaired at this point and a barricade placed around the pavement. A motor truck of the A. M. Castle Co., of Chicago was going west and the barricade was in the way. It is said that the truck driver had stopped and a Hudson car driven by Arthur Schneider of Alsip, Pa. was going east. Seeing the truck at a stop Mr. Schneider attempted to pass the truck when the latter suddenly turned in his way and a head-on smash resulted. Mr. Schneider is said to have suffered a skull fracture and was otherwise badly hurt. With him were his wife and two daughters, one 15 years, the other 25 years of age. All were very badly hurt. The entire family is now in the Silver Cross hospital where it is said they may remain for weeks.

The car was wrecked. The damage to the truck was nominal.

TINLEY Legion Notes

The July meeting of the Fourth District was held at Homewood on Saturday, July 26th. The big feature was the drum and bugle corps contest. The 13 corps entered in the competition paraded from Central School to the baseball park where each one was allotted 15 minutes in which to parade and play. The winners are as follows:

1st prize, $300, Kankakee Post.
3rd prize $100, Mel Tierney Post Park Ridge.

The District meeting in Central school Auditorium was one of the most interesting of the year. As the Legion year draws to a close, the "Fighting Fourth" is still fighting but no one minds that. Differences of opinion in the Legion or in any other organization mean that members are giving thought to matters brought up for their consideration. District Commander Bill O'Connell and Post Commander Thomas of Homewood deserve much credit for this very successful meeting and contest.

Distinguished Legionnaires present included State Commander Hayes, State Adjutant Mundt, County Commander Novotny, Vice-Commander Jack Poorman, Eddie Wirtz, Editor of the "Illinois Legionnaire", Pence Orr of Joliet candidate for the office of State Commander and many others.

As usual, the Local Post was well represented, 10 members being present. And also as usual, Post 615 was at the head of the parade with Commander Hoar and Vice-Commander Stoltenberg carrying the colors.

Commander Hoar has appointed Adjutant Paul Griswold to be Service Officer with James Barry as his assistant.

The Post will hold an Old Time Dance and Picnic at the Saenger Hall on Saturday, August 16.

From 5 to 8 amusements of various kinds will be provided in the grove. In the evening there will be dancing with music appropriate to the waltz, two step, etc.

Post members should keep in mind the fact that the Legion year is drawing to a close. Many important matters affecting the Legion as a whole will come up at the State and National Conventions and should be discussed at Post meetings. Election of Post Officers will take place at the 2nd meeting in September. Every member should be interested in who shall be the officers of the Post for 1931. A good attendance is of vital importance.

Mokena Man Voices Protest

The whooping cough epidemic which has been sweeping Mokena the past few weeks has stirred some of the parents into action and at the village council meeting held on Wednesday night, John Horras appeared before the board and made a vigorous protest against the situation, saying that if the matter is allowed to go unchecked that other children who have not got the prevalent cough now, may contract it from those who have it when the school opens. Mr. Horras pointed out that in such event the school might be closed by the state board of health. The board felt that the parents are to blame to a big extent as they are indifferent and let their children play with other children instead of keeping them at home when they have the cough. If the parents will do their part the epidemic can soon be stamped out.

The new local board of health appointed has failed to organize due to one of the appointees refusing to qualify. As a result the village council has empowered Mayor Harry F. Mall to make new appointments so that the health board may be organized this week and action taken in the matter complained of.

Tinley Lions Gives Glad Hand To Midlothianites

What Lionism has done for Tinley Park was vividly brought out on Monday evening at the Lion meeting in Andres hall when a representative group of business men from Midlothian attended the meeting to learn about Lionism as they are contemplating organizing a Lions den at Midlothian. The visitors were given a hearty welcome and were honored with the "Lions roar". They were given a history of the Tinley club as well as an outline of its achievements in civic matters by individual members and officers. Those present from Midlothian were: Henry Stolz and Wm. Nagel of the coal and building material firm of Nagel & Stolz; Rudolph Grill, hardware dealer; R. K. Cumming, postmaster and R. I. depot agent; Mr. Fredholm, merchant; Mr. Adams, wife and son. Mr. Adams is the McNess products representative. The Tinley Lions promised the prospective Lions of Midlothian all the assistance needed in perfecting the proposed organization. The visitors enjoyed the hearty reception accorded them.

The Tinley Park Lions are planning to hold a big dance on Labor Day. More particulars in the near future.

PICNIC

The third annual picnic given by the combined lodges Odin No. 10 and Thor No. 11 I. O. S. will be held at the Frankfort Industrial club park, Sunday August 3rd. There will be sports, entertainments and free dancing. Music by good orchestra. Free parking. Everybody welcome.

Elmore Booms Another Tinley Subdivision

Grover Elmore is booming another subdivision for Tinley Park. He has just acquired the former Wm. Maihoff farm southeast of Tinley consisting of 120 acres. The land is to be sold in one and two acre tracts. Franklin Eulette and Paul Rauffoff, the latter of Tinley were the brokers in the sale of the farm. Fifteen new homes are to be built this fall. Elmore is about the only realtor in Cook county who has been showing much activity. He is the making of Tinley to a large extent.

Joliet Contractors Low Bidders On Wolf Road

Bids for paving Wolf road from the Will and Cook county line south thru Mokena to the Hickory Creek bridge a distance of 2.63 miles were opened in the court house in Joliet Thursday morning. Powers & Thompson of Joliet were the low bidders.

The bids were as follows: Powers-Thompson, $67,512.52; Pronger Bros Blue Island, $69,861.05, and P. F. McFarland, Joliet, $70,708.94. It is understood that all of these bids are higher than the engineers estimate that was submitted to the state highway department. No contract has been awarded.

Work of concreting 143rd street west of Orland has been started and crews are at work pouring concrete.

Three Tinley Park Boys Return From Trip

In less than a fortnight, Glen Koler, Marcus Klepper and Jack Swisher have returned after a 2005 mile trip in the trusty, if topless Ford (model T) owned by Glen Koler. These energetic boys pulled out of Tinley Park at 5 a. m., Monday morning, June 14 equipped fully to meet any emergency they might encounter along the road. Besides the regular camping (and cooking paraphernalia, they carried a first aid kit and Ford parts.

They passed through Detroit, and on to Port Huron, by six o'clock the first night out. Here they ferried to Sarnia Ontario, camping 15 miles over the Canadian border. They broke camp early next morning, and headed for London, Canada, arriving at their destination by nine a. m. Here they spent a little time with Mr. and Mrs. A. Hyde, uncle and aunt of one of the boys. The places of interest visited by the boys are too numerous to mention; however, some of the outstanding ones were, Port Stanley, Hamilton, St. Thomas, Canada and Niagara Falls, which included the scenic trip under the falls, Buffalo, Williamsport, Harrisburg and Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

Several hours were spent at the famous old battlefield. The boys then passed thru Maryland and on to Washington D. C. Here they had the good fortune to see the Senate in session, and to hear Senator Walsh of Mass., speak on the Naval Treaty. They also climbed to the top of the Capitol Dome, 131 steps. From Washington they passed thru Winchester, Virginia, over the mountains into W. Virginia, thru Ohio, Illinois, and back home.

Will Proceed With $70,000 Sewer Plans

At a meeting of the Mokena Local Board of Improvements held on Wednesday, village attorney Howard Schluntz stated that the proposed $70,000 sanitary sewer project is now about ready for court. The last obstacle to overcome was the securing of a needed 24 foot right of way thru the Hirsch farm. Chas. Hirsch, representing the Hirsch heirs was present and agreed to sell the right of way in question for $1100 and the Board of Improvements agreed on the price and attorney Schluntz said a contract for a deed for this right of way will be drawn up within a day or two. The court petition will be signed up next week. The matter of a public hearing in court will be hastened soon as the other legal matters pending are cleaned up.

Many Mokena Water Meters Not Working

The Mokena village council was given a surprise Wednesday night as Village Clerk Paul Roessner read a list of water users whose water meters are out of order, disconnected or the dials so badly worn that the figures can not be read. These meters being out of service means that the water users to whom they belong may be using more water than they are paying for. The board after considering the startling disclosures instructed the clerk to notify the owners of the defective water meters that they must have the meters in working condition by the 15th of August or their water supply will be shut off.

The village clerk reported that some of the meters had not been read since 1926.

The departure from established custom in the day-by-day program of the Illinois State fair, August 16 to 23, is bidding successfully for popular approval. This is evident to fair officials from the intense interest in the new features to be inaugurated this season, manifest throughout the state.

In lieu of automobile races on the opening and closing Saturdays—"All Veterans' day," August 16, and "Derby day," August 23—will give the state fair patrons two entirely new forms of entertainment.

Chicago posts are negotiating for excursion trains and special rates to Springfield and return, in order that the veterans, their families and friends, may take this opportunity to assemble at the state capital.

The enjoyable band concert that annually attracts many visitors to the fairgrounds on the Sunday of the fair will be augmented this season. In addition to the afternoon of harmony, Sunday evening, for the first time, will find the stands well filled with music lovers.

Monday, as "Children's day," follows precedent, as does Tuesday, "Springfield day."

Wednesday, designated as "Chicago day," is also, unofficially, the day for a roundup of Illinois Democracy. The Democratic state convention is scheduled for that day.

Thursday, "Governor's day," and proverbially the big day of the fair, will bring vast throngs of citizens to the state capital for the colorful ovation to the chief executive, and for the pre-campaign assembly of Republican party leaders.

Friday, "Farm Bureau day," will emphasize the close relationship between the state administration and the agricultural population of Illinois.

The closing Saturday, August 23, will present the first great opportunity for state fair patrons to enjoy a real program of running races, with the Governor's derby as the feature attraction.

What to do after graduation is bothering many graduates of high schools and colleges this summer. In choosing among the various modern types of work, Miss Anna May Price of the library extension division, Springfield, calls attention to the new vocational literature. With all the information at hand there will be little excuse for failure in choosing an occupation one may delight in for a lifetime. Four popular vocations today are advertising, journalism, salesmanship and home economics. These are well treated in the reading with a purpose series free for division. Miss Price will be glad to recommend books on other occupations to those who are interested in investigating different lines of work.

The Illinois State fair, August 16 to 23, has been selected by the American Belgian Horse association as the court of last resort to determine the winner of the cup that comes from Belgium, to be presented to the owner of the best Belgian horse in America, Milton E. Jones, general manager of the fair, and formerly an extensive importer and breeder of Belgian horses, as such, has gained a valuable acquaintance with the leaders in the Belgian horse industry, both in this country and in Belgium.

"Tent City," the camp ground of the Illinois State fair, will be in readiness for a vast increase in population, August 16 to 23, and advance reservations indicate that family groups and neighborhood parties from all sections of the country will occupy the grounds during the fair. Camping spaces are assigned upon request, without charge, to all patrons of the fair, who purchase season tickets. Children under twelve years are admitted free.

Black letters on a field of light green will be the color scheme of the 1931 Illinois automobile license plates. Secretary of State William J. Stratton has announced. The contract for the manufacture of the new plates was awarded to the W. F. Robertson Steel & Iron Co., Springfield, Ohio, on its low bid of approximately seven and nine-tenths cents per pair. This is almost a cent cheaper than the same company manufactured them for last year.

Honey cookery will form a novel feature of the culinary show of the Illinois state fair. This innovation, according to the fair officials, is the outgrowth of an effort put forth by the beekeepers of Illinois in their 1929 convention, to stimulate demands for this form of farm production. First, second and third prizes, $2.50, $1.50 and $1.00 respectively, are offered in ten classes of baked products and four kinds of candy.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, in an invitation he has sent to all Illinois editors and publishers to attend the 1930 state fair at Springfield, August 16 to 23, praised the press of the state highly for its co-operation in developing the fair into "the valuable institution it is today."

Subordinate contracts in connection with the construction of a power plant at the Lincoln State School and Colony have been awarded by the state department of purchase and construction.

Utilization of modern science in duplicating the original wall paper of Lincoln's bedroom at the homestead in Springfield will be carried a step further as a means of protecting the rapidly wearing floors where thousands of visitors have passed in viewing the interior of the building, it has been announced by Harry H. Cleaveland, director of the department of public works and buildings. In an effort to prevent further wear, a study will be made to secure a carpet of the type and pattern in use when Lincoln occupied the dwelling. A sample will be turned over to a weaver who will reproduce the carpeting for covering the floor.

Wheat produced on Illinois' state institution farms this season will not be offered on the open market. Instead, it will be made into whole wheat cereal for consumption by the wards of the state and into feed for the live stock and poultry maintained at the penal and charitable institutions. This announcement was made by the department of public welfare, following a conference between Director Rodney H. Brandon, and A. C. Everingham, the farm, garden and dairy consultant, supervising the institutions' farming operations.

The county fairs of Illinois propose to offer $611,449 in premiums this season, an increase of about one-fifth over the amounts they offered in 1929. This information is based on a compilation of reports received by Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, in relation to distribution of state funds for premium reimbursement.

Ten thousand tags, to be attached to exhibition coops that will contain prize poultry—chickens, turkeys, waterfowl, pigeons, rabbits, canaries and caged birds—are in course of preparation for the poultry show at the Illinois state fair. In order to avoid delay in handling the flood of entries that reach the state fair office just prior to the opening of the exposition, E. G. Horner, chief poultryman in the department of agriculture, who will superintend the show, has advance preparations well under way.

Because the Illinois State fair "provides entertainment and exhibits that will more than consume the time of those attending," the farm bureau organization will not attempt to offer any speaking program or other entertainment at the fair, Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, has informed the state fair management.

Illinois motorists planning southern tours next winter will be glad to learn that U. S. route 45 by that time will be solid concrete all the way south to Corinth, Miss. Contracts have been let for the three remaining gaps south of Metropolis-Paducah crossing of the Ohio and the slab will be laid this season.

Director Harry H. Cleaveland of the state department of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, have awarded contracts for the construction of 121 miles of highways, including the widening of highways in the metropolitan area. The total cost is $3,255,148.68. In addition there are several long stretches of roads, the building of bridges and the closing of gaps.

Approximately forty district and county fairs of Illinois will be visited this year by educational exhibits of the state, which present the services and activities of the various departments in the executive branch of the state government. Five units will tour the state, starting the latter part of July and continuing until the end of the fair season in late September and early October.

The Illinois State Fair School of Domestic Science, to open August 8 and continue until August 23, the last day of the fair, has an advance enrollment of 81 young women, representing 39 Illinois counties. Application blanks now in the hands of prospective students, if returned promptly, will bring the total registration up to the maximum capacity of the woman's building on the grounds—in which the school is conducted, according to Mrs. Anita Shamel, secretary of the household science department of the state farmers' institute, who will superintend the school.

Members of the Illinois State Fair Advisory board, appointed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, and organized with Homer J. Tice, Greenview, as chairman, have been assigned supervision over the sundry departments of the 1930 exposition, to be held August 16 to 23. The board members have selected superintendents to be directly in charge of the presentation of each of two or three departments under their direction, and assistants and helpers will be provided in proportion to the amount of work that each section demands.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson in a message sent recently to officials in charge of the fifth Polish day festival at Chicago, praised the Polish-Americans highly for their contributions to the development of the United States. The governor was unable to attend because of previous engagements.

The State Horseshoe Pitchers' association has invited all horseshoe pitchers in the state and their friends to be present at the tournament to be held at the state fair Wednesday and Thursday, August 20 and 21.

Lesson for August 3

NAOMI AND RUTH: A STUDY IN RACIAL RELATIONSHIPS

LESSON TEXT—The Book of Ruth. GOLDEN TEXT—And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth. PRIMARY TOPIC—Ruth a Helpful Daughter. JUNIOR TOPIC—Naomi's Faithfulness Leads Ruth to God. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Neighbors of Other Races. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Way to World Brotherhood.

I. How Naomi and Ruth Were Brought Together (1:1-15).

On account of famine in Bethlehem of Judah, Naomi with her husband and two sons sojourned in the land of Moab. After the death of her husband, her two sons married Moabite women. After a time her sons died also. After the death of her sons, Naomi resolved to return to her homeland, having heard that the Lord had visited his people in giving them bread. They went to Moab to escape trouble but only got into more. This is always the case when God's people go into the world to escape difficulties. It was not until Naomi was thus chastised that she resolved to return. When the time came for her to go, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance.

II. Ruth's Noble Choice (1:16-18).

Greatly as Naomi loved her daughters-in-law, she would not have them go into this matter blindly. She wished them to know the seriousness of their action.

1. No chance for them to marry again (v. 11).

Naomi told them that she had no more sons for whom they could wait. In that day for a woman to be unmarried was the greatest disgrace. Society differed then from now. No avenues were open by which women could earn their living.

2. Heathen gods must be renounced (v. 16).

Idolatrous worship could not be carried on in the land where God's people dwell. This was delicately touched upon when Orpah went back. She went back when it was plain that there was no chance for her to get a husband. After Orpah's return Naomi put an additional test upon Ruth, that of giving up her religion. Ruth was equal to the occasion. Her mind was fully made up. She was willing to accept as her God the One who was able to produce in his subjects the nobility of character she had observed in Naomi. Ruth's determination was so definite and unflinching that her expressions have come down to us in words which "no poetry has outlived and no pathos has exceeded, and which has gone through centuries with the music which will not let them be forgotten." She was determined to share Naomi's journey, her home, her lot in life, and grave in death, whatever or wherever that would be. To crown it all, she renounced her heathen gods and worshiped Jehovah, the true God.

III. Blessings Which Attended Ruth's Choice.

1. She found the true God (1:16). Instead of a heathen god who was unable to help her, she had the Living God, the God of Israel.

2. She found friends (ch. 2). As she went to glean she was led to the field of Boaz, a man of grace and wealth. The servants of Boaz treated her with consideration.

3. A good husband and happy home (chs. 3 and 4).

4. An honored place in the Israelitish nation (4:13-17).

5. She became a link in the chain of the Redeemer's ancestry (4:18-22 cf. Matt. 1:5).

The one who fully decides for Christ and gives up all for Him shall receive a hundredfold in this life and in the world to come eternal life.

The story of Ruth is a fine example, first, of right racial relationship. The union of Ruth with Israel was around the true God. And, second, of dispensational truth:

(1) The famine in the land indicates the testing of the Jews in the great tribulation.

(2) The going into Moab indicates the sojourn of the Israelites among the nations.

(3) The sickness and death in Moab indicates the chastisement of the Jews and their sorrows in the present age.

(4) The return to the land indicates the gathering of Israel to their own land, Palestine.

(5) Ruth's decision indicates the gathering of the Gentiles through the influence of the Jews.

(6) The marriage between Boaz and Ruth indicates the union of the church with Jesus Christ.

Adds Charm to Character
Small kindnesses, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practiced in our social intercourse, give a greater charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments.—Kelty.

Finding Happiness

God made the world to be happy in, but all the happiness some people get is hunting for trouble on a dark night with a dim lantern.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Hospitality

A GENEROUS host was Thomas Jefferson. So lavish were his entertainments and so great the demands upon his hospitality that the "Sage of Monticello" became almost bankrupt. University of Virginia students recently enacted the above scene at the Jefferson mansion near Charlottesville, Va.

No matter how generous is a host today he can serve no more delicious vegetable than Monarch Golden Maize.

There was no sweet corn like Monarch Golden Maize in Jefferson's day. It is fresh, clean, sweet, tender, creamy—free from cob, husk and silk—full-bodied kernels, sun-ripened, delicious in flavor. . . but not expensive.

Sold only through independent merchants.

More than 250 Monarch Quality Foods, including: Monarch Canned Fruits, Monarch Canned Vegetables (all varieties), Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Spices, Baking Powder, Sweet Pickles, Sour Pickles, Mixed Pickles, Catsup, Chili Sauce, Preserves, Jellies, Peanut Butter, Orange Marmalade, Toffees, Evaporated Fruits, Canned Meat, Canned Meats, Cereals, Soups, Grape Juice, Cooked Spaghetti, etc.

Southern France Clings to Beloved Bullfight

There are many things which distinguish the north of France from the south. The one drinks beer or cider, the other drinks wine. The one cooks with butter, the other with oil. The one eats leeks and the other garlic. Above all, writes a correspondent of the London Sunday Observer, the Midi has never quite forgiven Paris for having passed the law which makes bullfights illegal. Not that the Midi observes the law, which is openly and flagrantly defied, and the authorities dare not enforce it.

Recently, six bulls were killed on a Sunday afternoon at Beziers before an enormous crowd, and at the end of the entertainment a member of the municipal council made a speech, in which he referred to the art and the poetry to be found in the display. Other bullfights have recently taken place, or are announced, at Arles, at Nîmes, at Grasse and at Bordeaux, and there is even talk of one at near Paris as Compiegne.

Goodly Supply

Jimmy was taking a motor trip to California with his father and mother, and each little western town through which they passed had a signboard, giving the name of the village, and underneath, awaiting the results of the census, the abbreviation "Pop," with a blank space for the number of inhabitants. Jimmy observed this for several hours, and then he exclaimed, "Gee, isn't it funny? Every town we go through has pop for sale!"

"Robot" Flying Restricted

As the result of the successful flights of airplanes with "robot" pilots in several countries, an amendment to the international air convention has been made to provide that pilotless aircraft shall not fly over any other country except its own.

American Physicians

The American Medical Journal estimates that in 1929 there were 149,521 physicians in the United States. That means an average of 12.65 doctors to each 10,000 population. The medical schools of the country report that the number of women receiving degrees as physicians is steadily increasing, the number of graduates in 1923 being 3,120 and in 1928, 4,262.—Capper's Weekly.

Indigestion is the mother of many a disagreeable disposition.

Harold Bell Wright
Novelist.

Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these My brethren, even these least, ye did it unto Me.—Matthew 25:40.

And behold, a certain lawyer stood up and made trial of Him, saying, Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? And He said unto him, What is written in the law? How readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. And He said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.—Luke 10:25-28.

The life is more than food, and the body than the raiment.—Luke 12:23.

Comment: To me, this last sentence expresses what, with no irreverence, I like to think of as the earthly philosophy of Jesus. As a single grain of wheat holds a germ of life which is capable of producing all the bread the world will ever need, this saying holds the vital germ of all that Jesus taught concerning man's right living here on earth.

MORE TRAGEDIES CAN BE EXPECTED

The death of a 10 year old bicyclist last week brings home the necessity for motorists to be constantly on the watch for boys on wheels. Almost any day one can see boys weaving in and out of traffic, racing the cars, and displaying the utmost disregard for their own safety. While we do not know whether this boy was careless or not, the carelessness of others is only too apparent.

If parents will not teach safety to their children, and the boys will not look after themselves, it unfortunately remains for the motorist to do all the watching for both.

We have joined with Firestone to not only meet but BEAT Mail Order and other Special Brand tires on Price-Quality-Service

Come in and see the facts for yourself

YOU no longer need to send for tires by mail, nor do you have to buy tires made by some unknown manufacturer. Firestone prices are now the lowest in tire history, but more important than that, Firestone quality has never been higher.

We've taken the mystery out of tire buying

Visit our store and we will show you the "inside facts" about tires. We have actually cut up new tires and have the cross sections for you to examine—you will easily see why Firestone quality is so outstanding.

Don't worry about punctures and blowouts

Punctures and blowouts are bothersome and most people fear them—but NOW, because of the patented Double Cord Breaker, Firestone has practically eliminated them. Come in and let us show you this feature that puts two extra plies of cord right under the tread where most road wear comes and where punctures and blowouts start.

Compare Prices and Specifications

Because Firestone Tires hold all world records on road and track for speed, safety and endurance, many people think they are high priced—but just check these low prices—then compare quality—you will be dollars and miles ahead.

Boy Killed on Cicero Friday

George Bunyea, 10, was struck by a car at 144th and Cicero at 7:15 a. m. last Friday, dying of skull fracture and internal injuries. The boy was riding a bicycle on the wrong side of the road when struck by Aaron Hutchinson of Oak Forest. The motorist picked him up and started for St. Francis hospital, but could not get further than 147th and Western; there he was picked up by Steve Yaden. But the boy was dead before he arrived at the hospital.

An eye witness, Pete Westia, 500 W. 107th st., who was driving a truck declared that he had called a warning to the boy, but the warning had not been heeded. At the inquest Aaron Hutchinson was exonerated of blame as the testimony showed that he had gone into the ditch to avoid hitting the boy.

George Bunyea was born Dec. 2, 1919, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bunyea of Crestwood. Besides his parents he leaves a brother, James and a sister Evelyn. The funeral was held from St. Christopher's church at 9 a. m. Burial was at St. Benedict's cemetery. Funk, Adler and Hirsch directed the funeral.

Midlothian Legion Notes

Why You Should Join The American Legion

Because: 1. Your interest in the relief of your disabled comrades can be expressed effectively through the Legion. The Legion is seeing that the disabled World War veterans get justice and that they get proper hospitalization. It caused the organization of the United States Veterans' Bureau and has helped to secure thousands of adjustments of disability claims.

2. Every piece of legislation beneficial to ex-service men has found the Legion behind the wheel. It has helped to secure modification of unjust sentences imposed on soldiers and sailors during the war. It has brought pressure to bear that resulted in better immigration laws.

3. Your American Legion membership entitles you to a free subscription to The American Legion Monthly which keeps you in touch with what other service men are thinking about.

4. You will become a member of the strongest organization of World War Veterans in the United States. The Legion has many times more members than any other group of veterans.

5. The Legion button which you will wear will identify you as having rendered honorable service to your country in time of war, and as a member of an organization which is continuing that service in time of peace.

6. You will become an asset to Midlothian Post 691 which is growing steadily each year since its inception in 1927.

Join now! We want 100 members before 1931. After we have this number you will see plenty of action. Join now!

St. Christopher's Picnic Success

There was a fairly good crowd at St. Christopher's picnic Sunday in spite of the heat and the mosquitoes.

There were no races as had been planned because of the extreme heat, but the children were amply repaid by the pony rides, which was a last minute surprise.

Some of the prize winners were: Mrs. Crowell of Chicago, aunt of Mrs. A. Wertz, a comforter, pair of pillow slips and an apron; S. Bauer, a set of pillow slips and sheets with colored borders. Virginia Cummings, a gorgeous doll. Fr. Gertian, 2 pillows; Mrs. Lilly, among other things a nice enamel roaster; and others too numerous to mention.

The various committees who helped make the picnic a success were: In charge of traffic: John Lerner, Claude Lerner, Charles Bostrom and Frank Cure.

Fancy Work: Mrs. A. Herrmann, Mrs. F. Czeslawski, Mrs. A. Dillon with E. Loving and U. Widman assisting.

MIDLOTHIAN

Florence and Carol Isomonger are planning to spend the rest of the summer at South Haven, Michigan.

Frank Stuart and George Blessing returned Sunday from a trip to Niagara Falls and Canada.

Two cars were badly damaged and a boy injured in a collision at 147th and Abbottsford rd. on Monday of last week. Two boys were going east on 147th in a car belonging to Louis Widner, 159th and Crawford, when a car on the wrong side of the road crashed into them. One of the boys was taken to the Ingall's Memorial hospital.

Mike Wyma is again driving for Kennedy's laundry. His friends are predicting a lot of new customers. The Healy and Hoffman families for him.

Woman's Club Activities

The picnic held by the Midlothian Woman's club last Friday in the Forest Preserve at 143rd and Harlem ave., was a regular one. The day was very warm, but was quite cool in the shade of the trees. Ice cream, cold pop and lemonade aided in cooling.

There were games for the grown ups as well as the children.

Harriet O'Neil won in the larger girl grasshopper race, and Gloria Atkins won the small girls grasshopper race. T. Dodson won the large boys race, with William Dodson second. Harriet O'Neil won the large girls race with Doris Ashton, second.

The grown ups had an alphabet game with Mrs. H. Sykes captain of one team and Mrs. H. Barmore, captain of the other team. Mrs. Sykes' team won.

Mrs. E. S. Trube was captain of one team for the spell down contest with Mrs. A. Berg, captain of the other team. Mrs. Berg's team won.

There were about 50 at the picnic and all returned home in the late afternoon tired from a good time.

Friday, August 8th will be the next regular business meeting and a good crowd is expected as the club is to read the changes to be made in the by-laws so they can be voted on at the next business meeting.

The Mud of Midlothian

Ed. Campbell, who in a moment of madness left the sylvan delights and urban comforts of Midlothian for a Tinley Park chicken ranch, starts his working day by donning a sweater and two overcoats, and thereafter spends half his time blowing on his chapped hands or stamping his chilled feet in a packing house beef cooler.

During this torrid summer, let us number him among the favored of the gods.

Paul Schwaighart's aged and weary look is due to overmuch concentration on how less than 90 families in the gardens can use sixty thousand gallons of water a day.

As a solution of this problem, Uncle Casey suggests that perhaps the people over in Robertson's are crossing Crawford avenue under cover of darkness laden with pans, buckets and barrels and returning with the same full of Midlothian's most expensive beverage.

Which reminds me: SIMILE—as scarce as water in Robertson's.

And now that Tommy Stodd, king of racetracks and patriarch of police magistrates, has shaved his beard how will Markham mothers prove there is a Santa Claus?

Yes, they might glue cotton on Attorney Harper's chin.

Remember that, Judge, the next time a ribald remark concerning The Messenger character comes to mind.

And then there's the Sunday driver who finding himself unable to stop behind an eastbound car that slowed down at 42nd swerved into the ditch in front of Mayor White's house at fifty miles an hour, climbed the sidewalk, traveled it to 42nd missing a telephone pole by inches, then swung back east on 147th.

On reaching Crawford, he probably drew a Midlothian Special and nonchalantly asked Chief Terry for a light.

Before we close let us rise, face the East and with heads uncovered and bowed, ponder a moment on the inscrutable strength of those odd 40 unsung heroes who catch the five fifty two every morning.

Reward: A padded gold brick will be awarded the first citizen who totally incapacitates one of those nitwit trainmen who call it Midlothian.

Tuesday, August 5th from 10 to 12 a. m., will be our next welfare conference in Midlothian at the McIntosh office 146th st., and Millard ave. The last two meetings in Midlothian have been a decided failure, as there were not enough children present to be worth the time of the doctor and nurse. This is not because of lack of children in the community.

We know that some of the children go to their own family physician once a month for the first year of their life, but three are still a greater number who are not examined by a doctor or even weighed at certain

Business Men Working on Organization

Encouraged by the report of the delegation who attended the meeting of the Tinley Lions Monday night, the Midlothian Boosters' club Tuesday night set about perfecting their own organization. In the absence of Chairman Moore, Henry Stolz acted as temporary chairman.

Regular meeting nights were set as the first and third Mondays of each month. A committee of members Searle, Hulett and Sedgwick was appointed to recommend a permanent meeting place. Morton, Fredholm, Mills and Schroeder were appointed as a program committee. Fees of $5 per member must be paid in by the second meeting in August or names will be dropped from the roll, it was decided. Those coming in after that date must pay an additional $1.50.

At the next meeting, August 4, at the portable school, speakers from Tinley Park and Blue Island will address the club. The meeting will be open to suggestions for the club program—anything will be in order that will serve to promote the welfare of Midlothian.

Vaughn Herd Of Homewood High Producers

Dr. Vaughan of Homewood had the highest producing herd for the month of July in group 2 of the Cook county Dairy Herd Improvement Association, the herd of 11 Holsteins averaging 967 pounds of milk and 34 pounds of fat for the month.

The general average for the entire month was 872 pounds of milk and 27.6 pounds of fat with 158 cows on test, 11 of the 158 cows were dry, 18 cows each produced 40 pounds of fat or over.

Frank Sayers of Orland had second place with his herd of 9 P. B. H. cows making an average of 1092 pounds of milk and 30.8 pounds of fat.

Tommy Welter of Orland came in third place with an average of 891 pounds of milk and 29.4 pounds of fat for his herd of 18 P. B. And G. H. cows.

A herd of 9 P. B. and G. H. cows owned by George Keuch of Tinley Park was fourth with an average production of 952 pounds of milk and 29.4 pounds of fat. One of the cows was dry.

Mrs. Amelia Bettenhausen and C. H. Andres were tied for fifth honors each having herd averages of 28.4.

The top herd this month is one that has not been below the 30 pounds of fat mark in 1930. During the past month the herd was feeding on the second crop of alfalfa. With alfalfa knee high they did not have to work sixteen hours or more to gather roughage and naturally would have energy to produce milk.

Dr. Vaughn has spent much time and money to get the land in shape to grow this alfalfa. He has spread several car loads of rock phosphate and lime on the land to correct soil conditions to make the growing of alfalfa and sweet clover possible. The farm now produces enough alfalfa to feed the herd all winter. This pays Mr. Vaughn because a cheaper grain ration can be fed with alfalfa than could be fed with timothy or corn stalks.

In the state report we find our association above the state average for June. Our average was 29.9 while the state average was 28.2. Last year our association had a goose egg in the column headed number of times, the association was above the state average, this year we will have a number one in that column at least but hope to see our average up there more often. Our association was fourteenth in fat production and fourth in milk production out of a group of fifty-six associations in the state. The report of the Illinois 500 pound fat club shows Geo. W. Keuch in the running with his P. B. H. cow producing 8,404 pounds of milk and 317 pounds of fat in the first six months.

George Keuch also done a little home improvement in the past month and is enjoying the luxuries of electricity.

MARKHAM

Twenty-two cars made the trip to Peterson's Bayou on the Kankakee river on Sunday of last week to attend the picnic of the Markham Civic Club. The crowd enjoyed fishing, swimming, boating, games and races. Six boats were chartered.

The winners of the races were as follows: Married men, Paul Swanson; boys, James Brozek, Jr., girls, Gloria Kent; three legged race, Lester Rochrohr and Henry Bosch, with Mr. Bosch winning the run-off; young ladies, Irene Novak; married women, by Mrs. Baker's sister from Chicago.

Mrs. Winfield Roesner celebrated her birthday Saturday of last week with Dr. Gill and family of Blue Island. Mrs. Roesner and Dr. Gill are of the same age and their birthdays fall on the same day. On Friday Mrs. Roesner entertained the birthday club at her home; at luncheon, Mrs. Ruth Glims of Chicago won first prize; Mrs. Ada Erp, second; Mrs. Lola Clifton third; Margaret Holm of Blue Island, fourth; and Bessie Baird of Chicago consolation.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Chandler of Chicago were Sunday visitors at the Roesner home.

Lieutenant Paul A. Swanson, U. S. A., left for Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wisconsin Sunday on a 15 day tour of duty on the artillery range. He is a world-war veteran and has been on the reserve list since the armistice. Under the National Defense Act of 1920 he is required to spend 15 days on duty each year.

Markham fire hydrants have been enameled a brilliant red—they are now said to be the most decorative hydrants in the south end of the county.

MOKENA

Mokena has had an epidemic of whooping cough all summer and many of the parents are quite worked up over the spread of the coughs. As Mokena has had no board of health nothing has been done about the matter. At the last meeting of the village board a health board was named out they have not met and organized.

In addition to Whooping cough scarlet fever has made its appearance. The Nordsett home has been quarantined for this disease this week.

The new residence of Frank Tooley is fast nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy within the next three weeks. This is the finest home in Mokena.

Arthur Hall is making preparations for remodeling his residence. Friends of Mrs. Emil Krapp who is on a tour of Germany and other European countries have received cards from her saying she is having a delightful trip and seeing many sights rich in historical interest.

Threshing is well under way in this section. The oat crop is panning out quite well. Oats weigh out 32 pounds to the bushel and the yield runs all the way from 25 to 40 bushels per acre. Considerable barley was raised in this section and it also shows a good yield. Barley is being used mostly for feed.

The extreme heat has raised havoc with the corn crop, much of which has been badly fired.

Miss Winnifred Moriarty of Joliet has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Lizzie Moriarty this week.

Meeting

the Needs of Millions of People

The low-priced automobile has brought greater opportunity and added hours of recreation to millions of men and women.

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business—design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of millions of people and to provide it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

The search for better ways of doing things is never-ending. There is ceaseless, untiring effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing. The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before. Hard work usually finds the way.

Once it was thought impossible to cast gray iron by the endless chain method. All precedent was against it and every previous experiment had failed. But fair prices to the public demanded that wasteful methods be eliminated. Finally the way was found.

A better way of making axle shafts saved thirty-six million dollars in four years. A new method of cutting crankshafts reduced the cost by $500,000 a year. The perfection of a new machine saved a similar amount on such a little thing as one bolt. Then electric welding was developed to make many bolts unnecessary, and to increase structural strength.

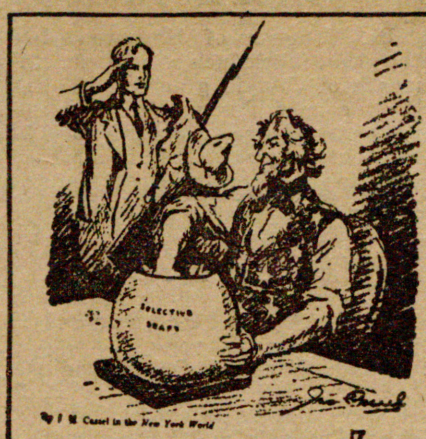

Just a little while ago, an endless chain conveyor almost four miles long was installed at the Rouge plant. This conveyor has a daily capacity of 300,000 parts weighing more than 2,000,000 pounds. By substituting the tireless, unvarying machine for tasks formerly done by hand, it has made the day's work easier for thousands of workers and saved time and money in the manufacture of the car.

All of these things are done in the interest of the public—so that the benefits of reliable, economical transportation may be placed within the means of every one.

THE EVOLUTION of UNCLE SAM

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AS MOST Americans know, Uncle Sam is the personification of the United States, just as John Bull is the personification of England. Most Americans, too, know that there was an "original Uncle Sam," a certain Samuel Wilson, prominent during the War of 1812. But there is much dispute about some of the details of his career and there is more than one version of the story linking him to the popular nickname of the symbol of our country.

Not only are the facts of this original Uncle Sam's life subjects for dispute, but there is even a dispute over the date of his death and the place of his burial. Both New York and Indiana claim the latter honor and monuments have been erected over graves in each state, one in Troy, N. Y., and the other in a cemetery near Merriam, Ind., each purporting to be the grave of the "original Uncle Sam."

Although this Samuel Wilson gave to our national vocabulary the term "Uncle Sam," it has been the artists and cartoonists of the past century who have made Uncle Sam a familiar figure to all of us. The first known figure of the United States in cartoon, from which the present figure Uncle Sam has probably grown, appeared in an English paper about 1845. It was referred to as Brother Jonathan, the then common designation of the United States in England. It may have been merely a close relative of Uncle Sam. In any case it represents (Figure 3) a young man, of decidedly flippant tendencies, dressed in the high hat, tail coat and tight trousers of the day, gayly thumbing his nose at the spectators.

The original American cartoon of Uncle Sam was published March 13, 1852, in the New York Lantern, a comic weekly of the time. It was drawn by F. Bellow. In it (Figure 1), is pictured an amused young man, wearing the high beaver hat, tight trousers, low-cut waistcoat, high collar and bow tie in which he is still portrayed.

It may safely be said that Bellow, in 1852, was the father of Uncle Sam, though his motherhood has been shrouded in the tales of an earlier year. Bellow's Uncle Sam, however, was still a young man, not having reached the stature and perfection of his later years. It was that great American cartoonist, Thomas Nast, however, who matured Uncle Sam and gave him to the world as we now know him. He was to go through a considerable evolution before Mr. Nast took him in hand.

An English cartoon of about 1855 shows another phase of his development, a still young man of decidedly hostile intentions (Figure 2), wearing the broad-brimmed felt hat of our southern planters, carrying the lash of the slave-driver in his pocket, wearing a long-tailed coat and tight trousers, putting up his fist, at the conventional and amused John Bull. During the Civil war period another English cartoon shows Uncle Sam, still a beardless young man, as a showman, wear-

The twelve cartoons shown above, provided by courtesy of the Bobbs-Merrill company, publishers of John Erskine's "Uncle Sam—In the Eyes of His Family," were selected from American and foreign papers over a period of more than 50 years and illustrate the evolution of the cartoon figure "Uncle Sam" and some of the various ways in which different artists have thought of him.

1. First known example of the use of the cartoon figure of Uncle Sam in the United States, published March 13, 1852, in the New York Lantern, drawn by F. Bellow.
- 2, 3, 4. Early examples of Uncle Sam published abroad more than 75 years ago.
5. Example by Oscar Cesare, New York Evening Post, published during the war.
6. Example by Rollin Kirby, New York World, published during the war.
7. Example by J. H. Cassel, New York World, published during the war.
8. Example by Charles Dana Gibson, published in Life during the war.
9. Spanish cartoon, during the Spanish-American war.
10. German cartoon, during the Spanish-American war.

ing a high beaver hat, tight trousers and long-tailed coat (Figure 4).

Thomas Nast added to the young man the chin whiskers that have been variously trimmed and combed by the artists of the past 50 years to indicate everything from a country bumpkin to a benevolent despot. Nast also added the familiar starred vest and striped coat, and put stars on the hat. Nast made Uncle Sam a more real person than he had ever been before.

It is said that Nast took his inspiration of Uncle Sam from the character of Abraham Lincoln, drawing into his physiognomy some of the benevolence, kindly humor and tolerance that characterized Lincoln. American cartoonists have since followed the lead of Nast, generally giving their figures a dignity and an impressiveness in keeping with the growth of American destiny.

The Spanish-American war produced a great flood of Uncle Sam cartoons. Most of them were unfriendly, with the single exception of England, who maintained an attitude, as illustrated by her cartoonists, of amused expectancy, somewhat troubled by the growing power of her younger brother across the seas, but generally friendly. Naturally the Spanish cartoons of the period were the most vindictive. One (Figure 9) is typical.

A German cartoon of the same period is far from flattering. Though the costume is faithfully portrayed, the figure is that of a typical Hebrew peddler engaged in selling the fruits of his victory over Spain in the form of doves (Figure 10). A picturization of Uncle Sam common abroad in recent years is that of a very much bloated, exceedingly prosperous and none too cultured gentleman. An excellent example of this type appeared in Italy just after the last war (Figure 12), showing a vast Uncle Sam, fat and plastered with money, supporting the tottering figures of England, France and Italy.

During the war cartoonists of great ability gave to the nation example after example of the figure Uncle Sam in which the element of caricature had been submerged and the sense of a national spirit personified, though the precise featuring of the figure differed with the differing technique of the artists.

One of the most distinguished of these drawings appeared in Life, drawn by Charles Dana Gibson, the recognized dean of American illustrators. (Figure 8). Uncle Sam is here portrayed as a fine elderly man of deep sympathy, supporting and congratulating a mother whose son is going to the colors. The face is patriarchal, the features benign. Another great American cartoonist, Oscar Cesare, drawing for the New York Evening Post (Figure 5), shows an exceedingly dominant old gentleman in the act of offering the nation the choice between the shackles of autocracy and a Liberty bond. J. H. Cassel in the New York World shows an equally dominant Uncle Sam in a somewhat different mood, making a kindly selection of the man power for the war through the selective draft (Figure 7).

One of the most forceful of the American cartoonists, Rollin Kirby, drawing for the New York World, has frequently portrayed Uncle Sam. His figures, splendid in technique, may be taken by many as the spirit of America they like to consider as most definitely our own, physically powerful, determined and forceful of expression, standing four-square against the encroachments and infringements of hurtful influences. Such an Uncle Sam (Figure 6) is shown ready to throw bodily from the country the undesirable influences contributing to lawlessness.

Although the cartoonists have given us our conception of Uncle Sam as a national symbol, it has been left to a famous American novelist to portray him as a man. That novelist is John Erskine, whose book "Uncle Sam—In the Eyes of His Family" was published by the Bobbs-Merrill company recently. It was an ingenious idea that the novelist had. Recalling the familiar cartoons of Uncle Sam, Mr. Erskine states his main purpose in a foreword to his book as follows: "I have long believed that this figure might be filled out into a complete character, endowed with an inner as well as a public character." So he set about to tell a story that would be more than just a novel about a mythical character; it would be a biography of a national temperament.

As a result Americans and our foreign cousins have for the first time in their lives an opportunity to know what Uncle Sam thinks about; how he would act under given circumstances; how he lives; who his wife is; what domestic troubles he has and has; the nature of his business; his attitude toward his family, who must, of course, be the nations about us and their people.

Readers of his book may or may not agree with the novelist, perhaps, as to his interpretation of this famous character. But, at least, the idea of making him the hero of a novel is an interesting step in the evolution of Uncle Sam.

SUMMER FOODS

A housewife with all her other qualifications must be versatile with her food products, able to change recipes, adding bits of this and that which will change the flavor of a dish and make it seem something that it "ain't."

Inexperience must follow recipes, but a little venturing will show even the inexperienced that a bit more butter, a teaspoonful of sugar, a dash of chili or tabasco, a grating of cheese will make any ordinary dish into something more tasty.

Much tasting means no wasting, but it also means many new combinations. The slavish following of the cook book recipe will never create a new dish.

Men as well as women enjoy a surprise at the table—pleasant ones. Don't ask your husband what he would like for dinner—any more than you would ask the same question of a convalescent. Give them something that will please and satisfy the appetite. This is another rule that has exceptions for some husbands like to give dinner orders.

Give your family a thrill by serving something on a hot night that is cool and inviting, as well as nourishing and filling.

The planning and preparing of meals takes brains as well as good material and the less of either the more the family suffers.

All women are not born loving to cook, but no woman should assume the responsibility of a home without the knowledge of simple cookery and home-making, whether she is expected to perform these duties herself or oversee the work of others.

There is no time in the year when crisp, cool, dainty food is more needed and enjoyed than in the hot weather. There are countless soups that one may serve chilled—the fruit cocktails, the snappy bits in the form of canapés are all so appetizing.

FROZEN DISHES

With the automatic refrigerator becoming such a convenience, our cold dishes are changing in character. One may do many things with an electric refrigerator that cannot be done with ice and a freezer. The following are a few suggestions that will be of interest:

Strawberry Mousse.—Wash one quart of ripe, firm, good flavored berries, hull and mash, or force through a potato ricer—there should be nearly or quite two cupfuls of pulp and juice. Add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar to the berry pulp and stand in the refrigerator to chill and dissolve the sugar. Whip one cupful of cream until stiff, add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and cut and fold in the strawberry mixture lightly. Turn into a cold freezing pan and place in the refrigerator from two to five hours.

Frozen Fruit Salad.—Whip one-half cupful of cream until stiff, add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and continue beating. Cut and fold in one-half cupful of cooked salad dressing; now add a tablespoonful of chopped pecans, and one-fourth cupful each of crushed and drained pineapple, cherries—white ones, stoned—chopped canned apricots, one small banana sliced and one orange cut into small pieces. When well blended pour into a freezing pan and place at once in the refrigerator. Let stand from two to five hours. Serve in squares on lettuce with or without salad dressing.

Frozen Cheese Salad.—Whip one-half cupful of cream, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and continue whipping until stiff. Mash one cream cheese and add one-fourth of a cupful of mayonnaise, or a more excellent flavor is obtained by adding cooked dressing and mayonnaise. Blend until smooth and fold in the whipped cream, add one-half cupful each of chopped dates and crushed drained pineapple. Place in a freezing pan and let stand three hours. Serve on lettuce with or without salad dressing.

Icebox Cookies.—Take one-third of a cupful of maple sirup, two and two-thirds cupfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of butter. Boil together, then cool. Sift four teaspoonfuls of baking powder with four cupfuls of pastry flour, one teaspoonful of salt, add one beaten egg, the sirup mixture and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and one cupful of minced nuts. Mix well and roll into a small, long roll, or two; wrap in a cloth to keep them from sticking to the pan and place in the icebox. Cut into thin slices and bake a few any time a fresh cookie is desired; they will keep a week or more in the ice chest.

"Oh, forget what I said," she cried, distressed. "Yet I meant well. 'Tis my fault that you have singled out James. Deny it not. Your ship was equipped to fight the Badger."

"Sure, ma'am." Again a complexity of passions tormented Fellowes. He wanted to be kind. He wanted to be cruel. He wanted to help. He wanted to hurt. The sweat stood in beads on his forehead, clammy as the sea mist that dripped from the spars. If he might take her in his arms, and comfort her! But no, cruelty would be more kind. "If I sink the Badger, I do a service for my country, which should be your country. If I happen to kill Captain Collishawe"—he made a pretense at a shrug—"why, I shall remove a dangerous enemy of my country—and the man who dogged me."

She regarded him with that small mournful look, her lips curved in pity. "And I have done this to you!" she said. "I should remember. But each time it hurts the same. I am so sorry, so very sorry! I've turned love into hate, and ruined two men's lives. Ah, and brought my father to the gallows! Isn't that sufficient? Oh, well, then, we'll go below. Anywhere! What does it matter? A few hours, a few days, a few months!"

Her father led her away, mumbling fustily, and Fellowes hurried forward to inspect Noggle's drag—anything to occupy him, to aid him to forget her. She was in love with Collishawe, of course. The letter—everything—her words, her humors, her palpable anxiety—proved it. D—n the Britisher, he must have swept her off her feet! But when? Before—that night? Or after?

He turned to Cuffee, his brain working simultaneously along parallel lines, to caution the negro to reduce his powder charges when the brig lost headway.

"I don't want to reach him yet. No use in telling him we have a twenty-four-pounder. Just tickle him up, Cuffee. Keep him hot after us."

And Cuffee laughed uproariously. "Yah, yah, yah, Mars'r Fellowes! Dat big fun. Oh, we fool him Collishawe plenty too much."

Back on the poop straining anxiously through the mist, Fellowes recalled that last night on the True Bounty, a swish of skirts, a warm, pliant body pressed to his, the touch of soft lips.

CHAPTER XII

Battle

Long before evening the two vessels were visible to each other, the Centurion blocked clearly against the fading light in the east, the Badger a blurred tower of canvas in the radiance of the sunset.

The Badger gained slowly on the Centurion, and under cover of darkness the privateer cut herself free of the drag, shortening sail to maintain her position just out of range of Collishawe's twelve-pounders. The men off watch were sent to their hammocks, and those on duty bidden to lie down beside the guns. Fellowes, himself, endeavored to set an example by curbing his excitement, and toward midnight snatched a nap in one of the wardroom bunks.

An hour before sunrise Fellowes was awakened by a messenger from Breed, who had the watch. He came on deck to find the crew astir, the galley smoking busily. Cuffee was crooning over the Big Sarpent, removing yesterday's powder stains from his shiny barrel with a rag and polish.

Fellowes' first thought was to see to the feeding of his men. They were to have a hot meal and a special issue of grog. "And don't forget the prisoners, Mr. Breed. We may be hours at this job. Give them the same meal as the crew, and then stow them in the cabletiers." Himself, he attended O'Shaughnessy to the cockpit. 'Ara opened the door in response to his knock.

"I am loath to disturb you, ma'am," he said; "but the doctor will be requiring his quarters soon, and I'd place you out of reach of shot."

She regarded him with the same pitying expression which had irked him the day before.

"Thank you," she answered quietly, "but if we may, sir, we'll stay here. Doctor O'Shaughnessy will require assistance."

"But you don't realize! Round-shot wounds are hideous. And grape!" "I'd rather see the worst things than crouch below and imagine them. And I'm not one to faint and stew, Captain Fellowes."

"There's Mr. Inglepin," Fellowes suggested, "and your attendant?"

"I may be a fool," Ben Inglepin retorted tartly, "but I can win a bandage or hold a basin—and I prefer anything to the darkness and stench of the orlop, which, I suppose, is where you'd put us."

"'Tis safe, at least," asserted Fellowes, puzzled.

"Why, sir, if we must believe you, we are by no means safe, wherever we are."

Fellowes looked at the duenna, dark, fat, immutable, jetty eyes squinting from the folds of her mantilla.

Cara said quickly:

"The senora can help, too. She will be much better for having something to do. Come, sir, do not sentence us to the hold! Your wounded will be more comfortable for what assistance we can render." She appealed to O'Shaughnessy. "You'll confirm me, won't you, doctor?"

The Irishman supported her gallantly.

"'Tis short-handed we are, captain, and with none but the stewards for dressers I'll be in a bad way."

It was a good argument. Fellowes admitted to himself. He owed his men every chance for life, and three extra helpers might turn the scale for the poor devils, whose bodies were maimed by the Badger's cannonades.

"Very well," he agreed. "If you are certain 'twill not distress you. Once we are in action, you must remain here."

"You speak of being in action, Captain," the girl exclaimed. "How soon—will it be?"

"Within the hour," he answered curtly, and withdrew.

Ascending to the deck, he rehearsed in his memory the fearful expectation mirrored in her face. She knew what he planned for Collishawe, and dreaded it. Well, he'd give her ample to weep over. When he'd finished with the Englishman—

The Centurion, at Fellowes' direction, wore handsomely, and stood northeast-by-north on the la'b'd tack. The Badger, apprehending the maneuver indicated the Yankee brig intended to come to close quarters, commenced to take in her mains' and clew up her after canvas.

Fellowes studied their progress, as the interval of blue water diminished with the persistent attempt of the Badger to point up higher than the Centurion, and when he thought the range was right for the twenty-four-pounder he hailed Cuffee!

"Ahoy, gunner! We'll try the Long Tom."

Cuffee's first shot skipped the waves in front of the sloop-of-war's bow. The next ricocheted over the enemy, but the third was a clean hit for'ard of amidships, and the Centurion's company raised a lusty cheer. Collishawe, undaunted, yawned to bring his chasers to bear, the twelve-pounder shot splashing up the water perhaps a quarter of a mile short of the target.

Cuffee fired a fourth time, and scored a hit in the waist.

"Come, come, lad, 'tis a spar I want," Fellowes called impatiently.

The next shot was an over, clean betwixt main and mizzenmasts, and Collishawe, apparently appreciating the weight of metal against him, came about once more, and stood down before the wind, bow-on, in an effort to close, so that his heavy broadside batteries could come into play. But Fellowes was alert.

"Steady all," the order came from the speaking trumpet. "Rake him, Cuffee. Mr. Spencer, hold your fire until I bid you loose."

Working with frenzied speed, Cuffee had the Long Tom loaded and fired almost before Fellowes had finished speaking. The shot struck the Badger on a level with the cat-heads. A second shot drilled the hull under the sta'b'd fore-chains, tossing a shower of splinters in air.

"Now, then, Mr. Spencer," Fellowes hailed the first lieutenant.

And the la'b'd twelve-pounders roared as one. All but two or three missed, but Fellowes was sure one shot had whistled through the fore-stays and a second hit the hull. He was satisfied.

"We'll go about, Mr. Noggle," he bade the sailing master. "On the sta'b'd tack."

It was time. As the Centurion wore, the Badger's chase guns flung their shot into the privateer's bulwarks with telling effect. When the confusion had abated Fellowes saw one man dead on his deck, and two others wounded. The Badger had teeth, and knew how to use them.

"Carry those men below," he ordered. "Bosun, where are your sand buckets?"

The Badger pegged away with her chasers, but the Centurion ran out of range quite easily and wore ship to give the Long Tom another chance. And an exultant yell greeted Cuffee's next performance—the main topmast of the sloop-of-war tumbled slowly from the fids in a sprawling litter of spars and canvas. Momentarily helpless, the Badger flapped up into the wind, and Fellowes swooped nearer for the benefit of his twelve-pounders. The broadsides roared as fast as the gun crews could swab, load and fire.

But Collishawe was a seaman. Before the privateer could smash another stick, he had the wreckage cleared from his deck, and the Badger manageable—and Fellowes must sheer off to avoid those hard-battering cannonades that would rend the brig to matchwood at close quarters.

A half-dozen more shots from the Long Tom, and the Badger's foremast, probably weakened by the hit in the chains, went overside in a clutter that dragged the sloop-of-war down by the head. Fellowes stood on, making use of the predicament to gain a position astern of her, but by some incredible effort, Collishawe was able to run both his long twelve aft, and in the face of a scorching fire from the Centurion's sta'b'd battery, actually succeeded in shooting away the brig's fore-topmast, blanketing the Big Sarpent, killing one of Cuffee's gun crew and drowning a pair of Sopher's marines.

Fellowes, coolly determined to take no unnecessary risks, promptly retired out of range, cleared the wreckage from his fo'c's'le, and again ordered Cuffee to resume sharp shooting. The negro had warmed to his work, and the Long Tom hurled its shot into the crippled sloop-of-war with appalling regularity.

Fellowes called to Cuffee: "Take your time, gunner; but I want you to knock over another stick." Cuffee's response was a clean hit in the Badger's mizzenmast, which broke midway to the top, and swamped the whole waist with its debris. The sloop-of-war broached to, all but helpless, while the Centurion heaved across her bows, broadside battered flaming as she tacked back and forth, back and forth, the Long Tom adding its resonant voice to the sharper detonations of the twelve-pounders. The smoke was banked so densely around the privateer that the enemy was practically invisible; but an answering broadside roared from the sloop-of-war, and the Centurion quivered under the impact of the cannonades' eighteen-pounder shot.

"Sta'b'd your helm, Mr. Noggle," hailed Fellowes. "He's swung his head around."

Methods of Escaping From Tornado's Grasp

The old time "cyclone cellar" or outdoor cave has probably been the means of saving more lives from tornadoes than anything else and is still one of the best places of refuge ever contrived. The southwest corner of the basement of a frame house is almost as safe, especially if a person crouches close against the wall. Tornadoes nearly always approach from the south or west and flying debris or perhaps the house itself will be carried away, from the southwest corner. The basement of a brick or stone house is liable to be a death trap in a tornado, as brick or masonry walls are liable to collapse and tumble down anywhere.

A person caught in the open when a tornado approaches has a choice of lying down flat in a depression or of flight. Tornadoes travel across the country at a rate of thirty to sixty miles per hour, usually, and escape for a person in an automobile is simple if there are highways open. A person on foot directly in the path of such a storm should run toward the northwest, which is at right angles to the storm path and toward the side where the winds are least violent.—Kansas City Times.

Long Speakership Terms

Henry Clay was speaker of the house of representatives longer than any other man. He was elected six different times, although he did not serve out six full terms or congresses. He resigned the speakership twice. Joseph G. Cannon and Champ Clark each served as speaker of the house eight years.

LACE TRIM IS FASHION FEATURE; NEW SILHOUETTE GAINS FAVOR

IN LACE used in a trimming way designers are finding a most intriguing proposition. Not just a casual thought, a passing fancy, is this lace trimming note. Rather it is being made one of the outstanding features in dress design. With the vogue for lace used with fabric at its beginning, the prospects are that "the best is yet to be" when fall and winter fashions get into full swing.

The picture presents a very lovely printed chiffon frock, its brilliant flower colorings contrasted by insets of exquisitely sheer black chantilly lace. This gown has one of the new explanation is that it's smart to be quaint.

When it comes to dressy dress as distinguished from sports costumes, all fashionable Paris has gone quaint and we are getting that way over here in America, too—wearing big bonnet-shaped hats and long black suede gloves and shoulder-cape effects and fichu-like collars and long skirts and short bodices with ribbon tied about the waistline. The picture tells it better than words, for each of these details is featured in this ensemble.

As to the skirt of this white-and-black crepe model, which, by the way, skirts with an extremely wide hemline which is fitted snugly at the hips with stitched down pleats. The latest theory among fashionists is that no matter how full a skirt be at the hemline it must contrive in some way or another to be tight fitting at the hip-line.

Evidences of a profuse use of lace made up with fabric are given in advance styles recently displayed. One very gracious gown combines black transparent velvet with black lace, using the latter for yoke, sleeves and a deep flounce on the skirt. To say that this alliance of lace and velvet is effective but mildly expresses it.

Not only is all-black lace used on black, but ecru tones are sponsored. The newest sleeves in afternoon silk frocks are of lace from the elbow down. Dresses of this fabric or that will, this fall, be lavishly detailed with lace gilets, deep revers, yokes, insets and all sorts of lacy fantasies.

That charming custom of trimming with yards and yards of lace edging is a Jenny creation, the matter of it's snug-fitting hipline is highly significant. A close observation will reveal the fact that the very latest dresses make a point of a molded-to-the-figure silhouette when it comes to the tops of their skirts with hemlines accenting a super fullness. This is accomplished by means of yokes, of stitched-down pleats, godets set in below the hipline and innumerable other devices.

The idea of wearing gloves, not the time-honored buttoned types, but soft nonchalant wrinkled-at-the-wrist pull-ons, is taking a definite stand in the world of fashion. To be ungloved is to ignore an important style mandate. So gloves it is, whether sleeves be short or long or minus. As to the washable cotton slip-on gloves in pastel tints to wear with summer frocks, counters where they are sold are being besieged by smart young things who delight in engaging in all the latest style "stunts."

Shift to Cities Checked

The farm-to-city shift of population, which in 1926 had given indications of reaching alarming proportions, has fallen away until during 1929 the loss to the farms was only 269,000.

It is estimated that 1,876,000 persons left farms to reside in the cities, but during the same period 1,257,000 left the cities for the farms. Helping to balance the shift were the 631,000 births on the farms, with only 281,000 deaths. During the peak year of 1926 more than 2,100,000 persons left the farms for the cities.

TRUE TALES OF THE TELEPHONE

Soap Bubbles—and Service

SOAP bubbles play an important part in making telephone service dependable.

In order to function properly, the paper-insulated wires of telephone cables, illustrated above, must be enclosed in a moisture-proof sheath. A pinhole in the lead-antimony sheath which encloses them may cause untold difficulties. One method of detecting such leaks is to plug both ends of a section of cable, which is then filled with a dry gas under pressure. The gas quickly finds and escapes from any fissures in the sheath or in the joints at splices. Pressure gages reveal the existence of such leaks, but do not show where they are. Sometimes the escaping gas may be traced by its characteristic hissing sound, but in many cases it is necessary to apply a soap-suds solution to the section being tested. Wherever there is a leak the gas blows a series of small bubbles and the difficulty is located and remedied.

Only through painstaking searches for defects of pin-hole proportions is it possible for the Bell System to provide dependable service.

NO USUAL TELEPHONE IN TELEVISION BOOTH

When two-way television was successfully demonstrated in New York City recently by Bell System officials, the first thing to strike the observer upon entering the booth was the absence of the usual telephone. The booth is lighted with a dim orange light, to which the photoelectric cells are insensitive. The special telephone transmitters and receivers in the booth are concealed.

Thus, when one talks face to face to a distant person, the word seems to issue right from his mouth as one looks at his picture, while the hidden receiver speaks for him. The reason an ordinary telephone cannot be used is that such an instrument would hide part of the speaker's face from the observer at a distance, but through this modern arrangement of concealed transmitter and receiver, that difficulty is avoided. Also, naturalness is likewise added to the conversation.

I Hear You Calling Me thus becomes I See You Calling Me.

DEPARTMENT STORE STAGES HUGE TELEPHONE SALE

A St. Louis department store recently staged a sale of drug and toilet goods in which 9,000 telephone orders were taken in one day and more than 25,000 individual sales were made. The advertisements in the newspapers carried an invitation to the public to telephone their orders, and forty-five special order-takers, trained to use a telephone intelligently, were called into service and given instructions as to how to make out the telephone order blanks that were used. An additional number of employees were given instructions on transferring the information contained in the telephone orders to the regular sales checks.

One of the most interesting features of the sale was that the telephone orders were taken after the store closed, from 6 to 9 o'clock.
